

True Source Honey
Watkinson Miller
1100 New Jersey Avenue, S.E.,
Suite 910
Washington, DC, 20003
U.S.A.
e-mail:
info@truesourcehoney.com
www.truesourcehoney.com

“THE DR. OZ SHOW” HIGHLIGHTS HONEY ADULTERATION AND CIRCUMVENTION

True Source Certified® Honey Protects Consumers, Beekeepers, Retailers and Manufacturers.

Washington, D.C. – February 15, 2018 – A segment on today’s “The Dr. Oz Show” highlighted honey adulteration and circumvention. Guest Food Safety Journalist Larry Olmsted recommended buying honey with the True Source Certified logo.

“Consumers care where their honey comes from and deserve pure natural honey – nothing added and nothing taken away,” said Gordon Marks, executive director of True Source Honey. “It’s the reason we launched the True Source Honey Certification® program.”

Honey adulteration and transshipping of honey undercuts fair market prices and damages honey’s reputation for quality and safety. The domestic honey industry has faced repeated problems with honey that is illegally transshipped from China through third countries to avoid anti-dumping duties.

The True Source Honey Certification® Program is an industry-sponsored, voluntary program established to combat the problem of illegally shipped honey. “Honey packers and exporters who become True Source Certified are held to the highest sourcing standards – verified by outside third-party auditors to ensure that all honey purchases are openly declared and that no illegally circumvented Chinese honey enters their supply chains,” said Marks. “They are also required to maintain a system to test honey purity.”

The True Source Honey program provides traceability from hive to table, helping ensure the food safety and security of honey, said Marks. Companies that are True Source Certified® represent about 30 percent of all honey sold in North America.

Consumers should look for the True Source Certified® logo on honey packages. Further information, including a search function to check honey products, can be found at www.TrueSourceHoney.com

###

True Source Honey LLC is a voluntary effort by a honey packers, importers, exporters and beekeepers to protect consumers and customers from illegally sourced honey and to support legal, transparent and ethical sourcing. The initiative seeks to maintain the reputation of honey as a high-quality, pure food product and to support the beekeeping and honey industry. Visit www.TrueSourceHoney.com and follow us on Facebook.